The different heights (approx. 226 and 239 cm), and 2 different depths (45 and 64 cm) allow any room to be planned both individually and accurately.
Cabinets can be made to measure with millimetre accuracy for complicated situations.

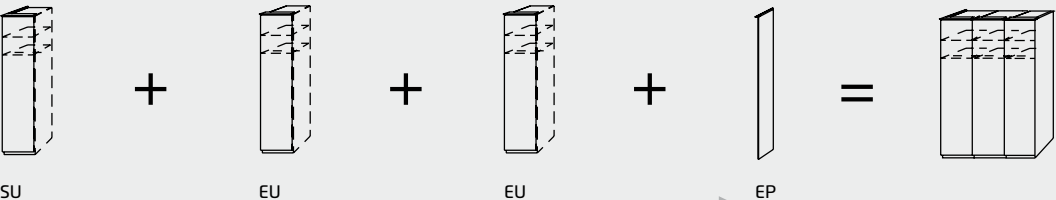

Cabinet units
All cabinet systems consist of a starter unit, any number of extension units and an end panel.

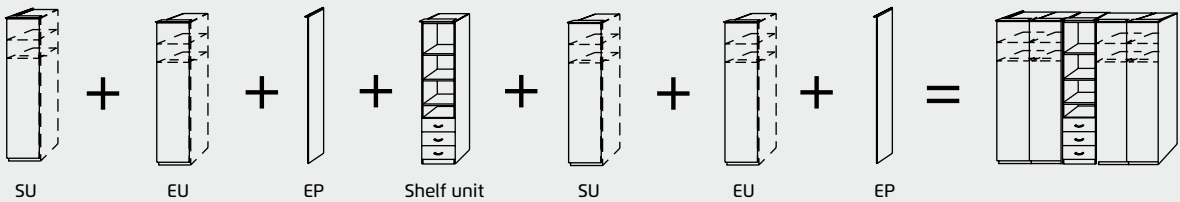

When installing shelf units or integrated a height or depth difference, an end panel is installed between the relevant units and assembly continues with another start unit. Corner cabinets are also designed using start units and extension units.

When adding adjacent single-door units with handle, you must select the door hinge so that there is no risk of the two handles colliding when the doors are closed.

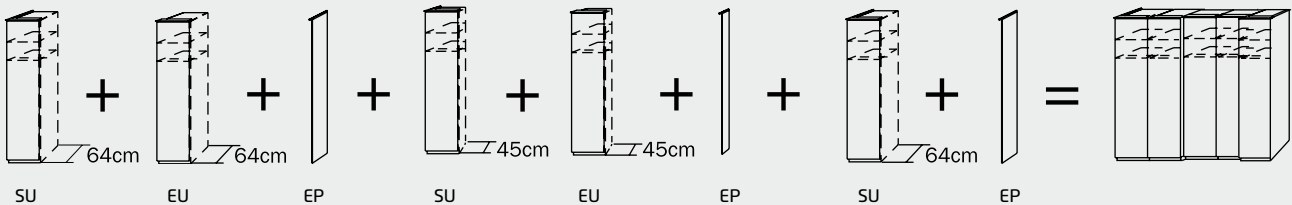

How to plan a wardrobe consisting of several units:
Wardrobes are extremely easy to plan and extend with the starter and extension units. Always start from the left and build to the right.
